"Urban-Eco Competition"

Description and Mission Statement:

The Freedom Challenge is an six person team event that starts with a raft race across the Ohio River from Newport Kentucky to Cincinnati. The teams must be comprised of three men and three women. The thirty teams, will be confronted with a unique series of obstacles and challenges they must complete as a team. Scaling vertical walls, an urban run from the river to Mt. Adams and the Downtown Crawl, are just a few of the obstacles they will encounter. The team judged fastest in completing all of the challenges wins. An after celebration with awards presentation, food and beverages will follow the running of the Freedom Challenge Urban Eco Competition.

The Freedom Challenge "Urban-Eco Competition", is designed to bring out the historical and positive elements of the Ohio River at Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky. The Freedom Challenge is an exercise in teamwork and freedom of choice we have as Americans to do this type of event for the fun of it. More importantly, The Freedom Challenge has been developed to help visualize and heighten awareness of the Ohio River as a means of transportation and deliverance from slavery. Countless families in the bondage of slavery found a new life when they paddled their raft across the Ohio on their own "Freedom Challenge".

With cooperation and commitments from the right partners, the Freedom Challenge will become a popular event growing annually and drawing teams from across the United States. This unique multi-sport event will contribute to extra revenues for hotels and restaurants on both sides of the river. The Freedom Challenge will derive positive national media coverage and help bring attention to the Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky river fronts as partners in commerce and tourism in this region of our country.
